

Too and Enough Exercises

Level: A2

Too and enough

Use too when there is more than you want, and enough when there is as much as you need: This bag is too heavy. We have enough chairs.

Too + adjective: Too means more than you want or need, so it is a problem. Too goes before an adjective: The coffee is too hot. I can't drink it.

Adjective + enough: Enough means as much as you need. With an adjective, enough goes after it: The room is big enough. Not big enough means it is too small.

Enough + noun: With a noun, enough goes before it: We have enough chairs. I haven't got enough money.

Too much and too many: Use too much with a noun you cannot count and too many with a plural noun: too much noise, too many people.

With to + verb: You can add to + verb to say what is possible or not possible: She is too young to drive. He is tall enough to touch the roof.

Too and very: Very means a lot, and it is not a problem: It is very hot. Too means more than you want: It is too hot to play.
