Reading text

Tom is a baker in a small town. He gets up at four o'clock every morning. He usually walks to the bakery in the dark. The streets are quiet, but the bakery is warm.

First, Tom makes the bread. He mixes the flour and water, and then he puts the bread in a big oven. After an hour, the bread is ready. Then he makes some cakes. Customers always come at seven o'clock. They buy bread, cakes and coffee.

It is ten o'clock now. The shop is not busy at the moment. Tom is making a chocolate cake. His helper, Nina, is cleaning the tables. Two children are looking at the cakes. A boy is pointing at a big cake. A woman is waiting for her coffee.

Tom finishes work at two o'clock every day. He is tired, but he loves his job. In the afternoon, he goes home and sleeps.
